the establishments and installations are classified into various identical groups, i.e., governmental and other public offices, commercial and industrial establishments, schools, theatres, medical facilities, facilities for personal conveniences, railroads, roads, bridges, and military installations. The numbers in parentheses to the right of each item correspond to the numbers on the attached sketch.

Governmental and Other Public Offices

1. (1) Kangwŏn Provincial (To) People's Committee (See Sketch No. 1)

This building, located at CU 641352, is a three-story brick building, approximately 40 meters wide, 15 meters long and high. The brick walls of this building are painted gray.¹ This is a rebuilt structure (post-armistice) which was destroyed during the war.

2. (24) Kangwŏn Provincial (To) Internal Affairs Department (See Sketch No. 2)

This building, located at CU 637355 and rebuilt after the armistice,² is a three-story red brick building, approximately 40 meters wide, 15 meters long, and 13 meters high.

3. (2) Kangwŏn Provincial (To) Prosecutors' Office (See Sketch No. 3)

This brick building is located at CU 643353. The central part of the building is three-story, while both ends are two-story. (Frontal View) This building is approximately 25 meters wide, five meters long, 15 meters high at the center (three-story), and 10 meters high at both ends (two-story). The walls of this building are gray, and the roof is flat.

4. (65) Kangwŏn Provincial (To) Party Headquarters, (Korean Labor Party) (See Sketch No. 4)

This building, located at CU 644365, is a three-story brick building, approximately 60 meters wide, 20 meters long, and 15 meters high, with stocco walls and a flat cement-coated roof. This building, rebuilt after the armistice, is the largest in wŏnsan at present.

5. (49) wŏnsan-si People's Committee

This building, located at CU 654344, is a two-story building, approximately 30 meters wide, 15 meters long, and ten (10) meters high, with red brick walls (partly painted white), and has a slate roof. The building was destroyed during the war, but was rehabilitated after the armistice.

6. (35) wŏnsan-si Internal Affairs Station (See Sketch No. 5)

The wŏnsan-si Internal Affairs Station, located at CU 652349, consists of a two-story building and an adjoining one-story house. The two-story building is approximately 30 meters wide, 15 meters long, and 7 - 8 meters high. The one-story house is approximately 20 meters long, 15 meters wide, and eight (8) meters high. The walls of this building are of red bricks, which are white painted in part. The roof of the two-story building is flat, and the one-story house has a tile roof. This building, used by an air-defense and fire-fighting unit during the Japanese occupation, was destroyed during the Korean war, and was rebuilt after the armistice. Standing beside this internal affairs station is a watch tower, originally built during the Japanese occupation, but which was destroyed during the Korean war, and rebuilt after the armistice.

watch tower, built of red brick, is approximately 20 meters high, 5 x 6 meters square. As of December 1955, this watch-tower was manned by a man wearing padded, khaki, winter clothes and a khaki winter cap, who was looking over the city.³

7. (25) Wonsan-si Prosecutors' Office, (Kangwŏn-do) (See Sketch No. 6)

This building, located at CU 640356 on a area slightly higher than the road level, is a newly build flat wooden structure, approximately 10 meters long, 20 meters wide, and four (4) meters high, with a galvanized iron roof, and a surrounding wall built of dirt and stone.

8. (39) Wonsan-si Labor Party (See Sketch No. 7)

This two-story building, with stone walls, is approximately 20 meters wide, 15 meters long, and 8 - 9 meters high. This building located at CU 650497, was built during the Japanese occupation.

9. (3) Wonsan-si Broadcasting Station

This broadcasting station, built during the Japanese occupation, is located at CU 642351.⁴ Because of shading trees, one can see from afar only the flat roof of this station. The aerial tower of this station has approximately 20 antenna wires.

10. (47) Wonsan-si Commercial Management Station⁵

This Korean style flat house, located at CU 653345, is approximately 30 meters wide, and eight (8) meters long. This building has white walls and a slate roof. This building was built after the armistice, and warehouses and other buildings are yet to be built.

11. (41) Myŏngsŏk-tong District (Ri) People's Committee

This flat Korean house, with white lime walls and a thatched roof, located at CU 651346, is approximately ten (10) meters long, 4 - 5 meters wide, and three (3) meters high.

12. (40) Myŏngsŏk-tong Internal Affairs Sub-Station

This internal affairs sub-station, located at CU 651347, is a flat brick building, approximately ten (10) meters long, 10 meters wide, and four (4) meters high. The lower part of the walls is cement coated, while the upper part is plastered with white lime. This building, with a slate roof, is manned by 7 - 8 members of the internal affairs station.⁶

13. (42) Post Office

This post office, located at CU 652347, is a flat building, approximately 10 meters wide, 15 meters long, and four (4) meters high, with white lime walls, a thatched roof, and a barbed wire fence.

14. (8) Water Works Bureau

This bureau, located at CU 638352, is a flat structure, built after the armistice. This office building, with white lime walls and a slate roof, is approximately ten (10) meters long, seven (7) meters wide, and four (4) meters high. A faucet factory is situated behind the office building, and there are stacks of water-pipe beside the faucet factory. A surrounding fence is made of barbed-wire fence.⁷

15. (22) Penitentiary

This prison and its surrounding wall, existing at CU 633348 since before the Korean war, were damaged during the war, but rehabilitated after the armistice.

16. (68) Rehabilitation Funds Loan Bank (See Sketch No. 8)

This bank, located at CU 646359, is a two-story brick building, approximately 15 meters wide, 10 meters long, and 8 - 9 meters high, with white walls, and a hanging signboard written in Korean (Han'gul). Korean, reading "Unhaeng" (bank) is inscribed on a stone pillar of the main gate. This bank is frequented by government officials dealing with financial matters relevant to rehabilitation of government agencies, but not by a single farmer or a laborer.⁸

Commercial and Industrial Establishments17. (64) Wonsan National Shipyard⁹

This shipyard, located at CU 645366, consists of one (1) two-story building, a flat building annexed to the two-story building, and ten (10) individual houses. The two-story building, with white lime walls and a cement floor, is approximately ten (10) meters long, (width unknown), and 7 - 8 meters high. The flat annex building, with black board walls and a black roof, is approximately 30 meters long and 5 - 6 meters high. The two-story building is used as an office, while the flat house is used as a warehouse and a ship building factory. There were five (5) unfinished boats, approximately four (4) meters long, 1.8 meters wide, and 80 centimeters deep, along the side of a road running close by this shipyard. There were approximately ten (10) carpenters working there. When seen from this roadside, there was a wooden boat (presumably) being built at the seashore.

18. (30) National Brewery

This brewery, located at CU 645356, consists of a three-story building, a two-story building, and a flat house, which all have cement walls and red tile roofs. This brewery is surrounded by a fence, approximately three (3) meters high. The present buildings of the brewery were built after the armistice on the site of the war-destroyed former buildings of the brewery.

19. (21) Wau-ri Market¹⁰

This market, located at CU 634348, is approximately 150 meters long and 100 meters wide. Approximately 30 - 40 shanty stores (private ownership), each approximately two (2) meters long, 1.5 meters wide, and two (2) meters high, located within this market, are stocked with an insufficient quantity of miscellaneous goods (cosmetics, daily necessities, dinnerware), clothes and shirts (second-hand and new), fruits, marine products, edible oil, etc. This market has no fence and no guard, and is free to access by any body.

20. (60) Chungch'ŏng-ni Market¹¹

22. Comment: According to available information, the Wonsan Rail Station is a two-story building, approximately 15 meters long and eight (8) meters wide, thus showing a wide discrepancy between the description of the same station given in this report. According to the available information, the north of the railroad station, there is a restaurant, approximately seven (7) meters long, four (4) meters wide, and three (3) meters high, with a gable front. This restaurant is used exclusively by railroad employees.
23. Comment: According to available information, this is the Chōkchōn-ch'ōn
24. Comment: This bridge was known as Chokchōn-gyo prior to the Liberation.
25. Comment: According to certain information, there was a technical school at the site of this tent immediately before war.
26. Comment: According to certain information, Wōnsan-bu, prior to the reorganization of administrative districts, consisted mainly of those districts (Tong) as are given in this report, such as Myōngsōk-tong, Ch'ungch'ōng-dong Kwangsōk-tong, and P'yōnghwa-dong. Ch'ungch'ōng ni and Wau-ri appear to have been included in Wonsan-si as a result of the reorganization.
27. Comment: Just before the war, this district consisted of Hae-an-t'ong, Uk-chōng, Su-jōng, and Chu-dong. According to available information, however, Hae-an-dong has been added to the administrative districts of Wōnsan as a result of the reorganization of administrative districts. The restricted area north of Chōkchōn-ch'ōn is presumably this Hae-an-dong.
